Abstract

The Elephantine Papyri demonstrate an Egyptian calendar which wanders through the seasons in an apparent 1,460-year cycle which is variously said to have started in 1321 BCE or 1322 BCE. Yet there is an aspect of known Egyptian dates which do not reconcile with such a cycle. Those dates, instead, synchronize to a new year beginning with the summer solstice and the rising of Sirius, the “Dog Star,” just before dawn on that day.

There are a number of scholars with a very clear and reasoned approach to the identification of Amenhotep II as the Pharaoh of the Exodus. When the biblical text is synchronized to Egyptian dates as they were in the days of the 18th Dynasty Pharaohs, these individuals are seen to have made a positive identification.

Introduction

Who was the Pharaoh of the Exodus? That question has been the topic of debate for centuries. Egyptology in general is characterized by a multitude of diverging dates and dissenting opinions. How could one ever know the absolute truth about any particular detail of it? That was my outlook on the subject when I set out to answer the question for myself.

Referencing dates supplied by The Elephantine Papyri in English,¹ I created calendar templates for years 1631 BCE through 398 BCE, each year having one row for each of the twelve Julian months and a corresponding blank row below each of those for corresponding Egyptian days. Then I plotted the calendrical data found in the double-dated texts of the Elephantine Papyri from 471 BCE through 402 BCE.²

Since the historic Egyptian calendar began its year with the rising of Sothis at the summer solstice, I continued extrapolating this pattern back to where the first of Thoth began to diverge from it. The year where the ancient calendar began shifting to the one evidenced in the Elephantine Papyri appeared to be 1265 BCE.

Next, I plotted known accession dates for 18th Dynasty Pharaohs and attempted to ascertain lengths of reigns. A handful of other known dates were plotted as well. The two most important ones were found to be I Shemu 21 in the 23rd year of Thutmose III and II Peret 30 in his 24th year. They work to establish 1493 BCE as the date of the Exodus and Amenhotep II as the Pharaoh of the Exodus.

While my approach to this whole issue is unique, I have relied on the works of Douglas Petrovich, Ian Onvlee, Vilis I. Lietuvielis, and Philip Derstine in formulating my perspectives. Their respective understandings in important areas heavily influenced the final outcome. To the best of my knowledge, the dates and resulting scenarios are consistent with the totality of the biblical narrative. Those who have already identified Hatshepsut as “Pharaoh’s Daughter” and Amenhotep II as the Pharaoh of the Exodus might be interested in the hard data which supports those theories. As to how the Egyptian calendar morphed into the 1,460-year Sothic cycle? That, as Paul Harvey used to say, is “The Rest of the Story.”

Joshua's Passover | 1453 BCE

The year of the Exodus was determined by working backwards from the known date of 587 BCE for the Babylonian captivity. Four steps were involved:

1. The Babylonian captivity (587 BCE) minus the 390 years of Ezekiel 4:5 brings us to 977 BCE and the beginning of the divided Hebrew kingdom.
2. The beginning of the divided kingdom (977 BCE) minus Solomon's 40-year reign brings us to 1017 BCE and Solomon's 1st year.
3. Solomon's 4th year was therefore 1014 BCE.
4. Solomon's 4th year (1014 BCE) minus the 480 years of 1 Kings 6:1 and we arrive at 1493 BCE for the year of the Exodus.

The start of the Hebrew year is extremely important to this discussion. The calculations in this work are based on a Hebrew year which never started more than one day before the vernal equinox. Jerusalem, Babylon and Elephantine were all using this calendar from 485 BCE to 351 BCE.³ It was in use through at least the end of the Persian period. It is this author's belief that this calendar scheme represents the original Hebrew calendar scheme.

The date of 1493 BCE for the year of the Exodus was checked by laying out a calendar for Nisan 1453 BCE, 40 years later. This is the year of Joshua's Passover. The biblical information reveals that Passover to have been a Sabbath day.

And they set out from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the day after the Passover מִמָּחֳרַת הַפֶּסַח (MiMochorat HaPesach) the sons of Israel went out victorious in the sight of all the Egyptians.
Numbers 33:3

And the sons of Israel camped at Gilgal, and they did Passover on the fourteenth day of the month in the evening on the plains of Jericho. And they ate of the produce of the land the day after the Passover מִמָּחֳרַת הַפֶּסַח (MiMochorat HaPesach), unleavened bread and parched grain, on the very day.
Joshua 5:10-11

³ Wayne L. Atchison, "The Elephantine Letters," (1994): 9, <https://sermons.faithlife.com/sermons/10186-the-elephantine-letters-by-wayne-atchison>.

Speak to the sons of Israel, and say to them: “When you come into the land which I am giving you, and reap its harvest, then you shall bring a sheaf, the firstfruits of your harvest, to the priest. And he shall wave the sheaf before יהוה, for your acceptance; the day after the Sabbath the priest shall wave it... Neither bread nor roasted grain nor fresh grain shall you eat until this very day, until you have brought the offering of your Elohim; it is an eternal law throughout your generations wherever you dwell... And you shall count for yourselves from the day after the Sabbath, from the day you bring the sheaf of the wave offering: there are to be seven complete Sabbaths. To the day after the seventh Sabbath, you shall count fifty days...”
Leviticus 23:10-11, 14-16

At the end of a forty-year tour of the Arabian Desert, Joshua led all Israel in a Passover in preparation for entering the land of promise. We read that they ate from the produce of the land the day after the Passover. They were instructed not to eat from it until the firstfruits offering was made, so it must have been made earlier in the day. They were instructed to make that offering the day after the Sabbath, but which Sabbath, the Sabbath of the first day of Unleavened Bread or the weekly Sabbath? The answer comes from two complimentary perspectives.

The first is found in the form of a well-known equation: “If $A = B$ and $B = C$ then $A = C$.” Each of the above passages contributes to the solution.

1. Numbers 33 – 15 Nisan is the day after the Passover.
2. Joshua 5 – All Israel ate of the produce of the land the day after the Passover.
3. Leviticus 23 – The new produce of the land is not to be eaten until the day after the Sabbath when the firstfruits offering is made.
4. Therefore – 15 Nisan was both the day after the Passover and the day after the Sabbath the year of Joshua’s Passover.

This means that since the Sabbath of the first day of Unleavened Bread is always the fifteenth of Nisan, it cannot be the Sabbath referred to in Leviticus 23:14-15. This “Joshua Factor” compels us to understand “the day after the Sabbath,” in Leviticus 23:14-15 as the weekly Sabbath.

The second way of looking at things is simply a straightforward approach to the Leviticus 23:16 text. The fifty-day count ends with “the day after the seventh Sabbath.” This is the weekly Sabbath. It therefore cannot start anywhere but on a day after a weekly Sabbath.

The astronomical data for 1453 BCE as the year of Joshua’s Passover is consistent with this. That year is a year in which the fifteenth of Nisan is both the day after the Sabbath and the day after the Passover. This requires a month which starts on the first day of the week (Sunday). There are no other years in the immediate vicinity of 1453 BCE in which this important criterion can be successfully met.

The count to Shavu'ot begins the day after the Sabbath of Passover week. Shavu'ot must be both fifty days and seven Sabbaths after the Sabbath within the week of Unleavened Bread. In 1453 BCE, the count began on the High Sabbath of the first day of Unleavened Bread. It was the day after the Passover, the day after the Sabbath, and the fifteenth of Nisan. It ended with day fifty on the fifth of Sivan. Following is the layout for the count to Shavu'ot. The light blue areas are the number of days. The darker blue areas are the completed weeks.

The 1446 BCE and 1445 BCE dates for the year of the Exodus⁴ do not meet the biblical requirements. The 1446 BCE date yields 1406 BCE for the year of Joshua's Passover, while the 1445 BCE date yields 1405 BCE. Neither one of these years start Nisan on the first day of the week. In 1406 BCE the first of Nisan was a Second Day (Monday), while in 1445 BCE the first of Nisan was a Sixth Day (Friday).

Egyptian Calendar Basics

The Egyptian day begins at sunrise. Each month contains thirty days. The year is made up of three seasons of four months each, each group of months corresponding to a particular stage of yearly Egyptian agriculture. At the end of the twelfth month, Mesore, five “epagomenal” or intercalation days are inserted in the year to make the general calendar year 365 days long. Because the calendar of the Elephantine Papyri had no leap year, it lost one day every four years. The names of the seasons and the months are as follows:

Akhet – Inundation

1. Thoth (I Akhet)
2. Paophi (II Akhet)
3. Athyr (III Akhet)
4. Choiak (IV Akhet)

Peret – Growth

5. Tybi (I Peret)
6. Mechir (II Peret)
7. Phamenoth (III Peret)
8. Pharmuthi (IV Peret)

Shemu – Harvest

9. Pachon (I Shemu)
10. Payni (II Shemu)
11. Epiphi (III Shemu)
12. Mesore (IV Shemu)

Plotting the Data

Because the type of data supplied by the Elephantine Papyri is different from that of the Eighteenth Dynasty, different methods were employed to highlight it. Evaluating the former involves finding the beginning of specific Persian/Hebrew months and counting. Evaluating the latter involves synchronizing Egyptian dates to very precise lunar phases and/or solar events. The data contained in the two sections is thus highlighted differently in the tables.

18th Dynasty Dates

1. The annual appearance of Sothis just before sunrise at the summer solstice (then 7 July) marks the beginning of the Egyptian year (I Akhet 1 or 1 Thoth) and is represented by a single blue square with border.
2. The dark period of a moon’s cycle is represented by a black square.
3. The night of new crescent visibility, full moon and quarter moons is represented by a yellow square with border.
4. The day following the night of the new crescent and the day following the night of the full moon are light-yellow squares with border.
5. The other days of the lunar month are in light-yellow squares without border.
6. Egyptian dates are in green squares with border.

The Pharaoh of the Exodus and the Egyptian Calendar

1. A 1,460-year cycle began on 20 July 1322 BCE (1Thoth = 20 July 1322 BCE).
It seems to have been either assumed or conceded by every one who has written on this subject, that Sothis rose heliacally at Memphis or Thebes, or at some intermediate place, on the 20th of July, B.C. 1322...⁵
2. A 1,460-year cycle began on 20 July 1321 BCE (1Thoth = 20 July 1321 BCE).
We know from Censorinus (De die natali, xxi, 10) that the first of Thoth coincided with the heliacal rising of Sirius on July 20 (Julian calendar) in the year 139 A.D. Hence reckoning backwards by Sothic periods of 1460 solar years we may infer that Sirius rose on July 20th (Julian calendar) in the years 1321 B.C., 2781 B.C., and 4241 B.C., and accordingly that the civil or vague Egyptian year of 365 days was instituted in one of these years.⁶

The Julian dates presented in Elephantine Papyri appear to be synchronized to the 1322 BCE start date for the cycle. Fourteen of the nineteen dates examined, however, are seen to be inaccurate when compared with the calculated Hebrew/Persian dates given in Parker and Dubberstein's *Babylonian Chronology*⁷ and checked with Roy Hoffman's *LunaCal2.1*⁸ program. Only five can be made to sync with the astronomical data. The rest are one day early. The table below reflects the astronomical impossibilities of the fourteen Julian dates given in Elephantine Papyri.

Julian, Egyptian, and Persian/Hebrew dates in the Elephantine Papyri synchronize astronomically to a start date of 1321 BCE for the Sothic cycle, not 1322 BCE. This is astronomically certain.

It comes as no surprise, therefore, that the 1321 BCE date also yields superior synchronisms to those of the 1322 BCE date. The following table illustrates this sufficiently. The following highlight colors are used for the individual manuscripts in the tables.

It is recognized that from the beginning of the empire and during the entire dynastic period the rising of Sirius with the Sun always occurred around the time of the Summer solstice...⁹

The solstice is, after all, extraordinarily hard to pin-point by observation, and in any case it was known from Greek texts that the Egyptians were particularly concerned with the heliacal rising of the brightest star in the sky, Sirius—that is, with the night when Sirius first appears, just before dawn.¹⁰

Since the Egyptian day began at sunup, the last day of the old year was marked by Sirius rising with the sun. The first day of the new year was marked by its rising just before the sun at the summer solstice, which at that time was 7 July. Implicit in this scenario is the insertion of a sixth epagomenal day every four years, as is done with the Roman calendar, as the Sothic year and the solar year are apparently of the same length.

... the Sirius year of almost exactly 365.25 days was established according to the heliacal rising of Sirius.¹¹

How then, do we explain the painfully obvious cycle of the Elephantine texts which is out-of-sync with both Sothic and solar cycles one year out of every four? If the historic Egyptian calendar was regulated by Sirius and its year of 365.25 days, how did it not originally have a leap year? It seems logical to hypothesize, based on these facts, that at some point the knowledge of the need for the sixth epagomenal day was simply lost and it was not inserted when it should have been. That is when the start of the year would have begun to wander from the 7 July solstice, creating the impression of a 1,460-year cycle.

And so, syncing the two systems was a matter of running the cycle back to where 1 Thoth first began to diverge from 7 July. That year, according to the tables, was 1265 BCE. Beginning there, I believe, the calendar began to morph into the cycle revealed in the Elephantine Papyri.

The following screenshots from the *Stellarium*¹² program capture the year the Egyptian calendar began to shift. The program variables were set to “the GPS coordinates of Heliopolis’ 874m peak of Jebel ‘Ataqah⁴ observatory, where these observations were made...”¹³ Sirius rose with the sun on 6 July 1265 BCE (-1264 astronomical). That day should have been the last day of the old year, 6 Epagomenal. Instead, it was the first day of the new year, 1 Thoth. The next day, 7 July, should have been 1 Thoth. Instead, it was observation, which is accepted by other Egyptologists, dates the papyrus to ca. 1523 B.C.^{27, 14}

The dates quoted above do not work with the 1321 BCE cycle. The 1541 BCE date according to the cycle would put III Shemu 9 at 18 July, while the 1523 BCE date gives us 14 July.

This indicates the recognition on the part of some scholars that at that time a different kind of calendar was in use than that revealed by the Elephantine Papyri. Neither of the proposed dates, however, is in sync with the summer solstice. When the beginning of the year is synced to the solstice, III Shemu 9 will always fall on 11 May in regular years and 10 May in leap years. It will never be a “Sothic” date.

The attempt to associate III Shemu 9 with the rise of Sirius has proven to be illusive. The text of the Ebers Papyrus itself makes this association difficult, if not entirely unlikely. The following reproductions come from David Rohl. His comments are enlightening.

Year 9 under the majesty of the dual king Djoserkare, living forever.

New Year's Festival, 3rd month of Shemu, day 9, going forth of Sepdet.

Tekhy, 4th month of (ditto), day 9, (ditto)

Menkhet, 1st month of Akhet, day 9, (ditto)

Hut-her, 2nd month of (ditto), day 9, (ditto)

Ka-her-

are clearly ditto marks (as demonstrated by their use in the second column where they repeat the season names in rows 3; 5, 6 & 7; 9, 10 & 11; and 13). If this is the case, then the ditto marks in the left hand column must logically represent a repetition of the phrase pṛt spdt in line 2.

...the phrase pṛt spdt occurs in every month line of the calendar in the form of a ditto mark; thus it is my opinion that ‘the going-forth of Sothis’ occurred on the 9th day of every month. This suggests possibilities other than a heliacal rising of the Dog Star (Sirius) – perhaps a ritual procession from the shrine of the goddess Sopdet or some other festival event?¹⁵

Or perhaps, since this date is the accession date of Amenhotep I as sole reigning monarch, he is likening himself and his reign to the rise of Sirius and a new year? Was he perhaps differentiating his reign from that of his 8-year coregency with his father? Might this explain the “new year” celebration on the 9th day of every following month for the coming year?

Perhaps the most compelling evidence for an Egyptian calendar with a new year’s day occurring at the summer solstice is found in two terms which mark the last night of an old month and the first day of a new one: pśdntyw and ʒbd, respectively. Don’t ask me how to pronounce them.

At stake is our understanding of the start of the Egyptian lunar month. Did the lunar month begin with dawn crescent invisibility, as argued by Parker, or was it associated with the first appearance of an evening crescent, the standard throughout the Fertile Crescent?

It will be seen below that pśdntyw and ʒbd bore a fixed relationship to each other and to the appearance of the first evening crescent, which provided the metaphor which governed that relationship...

... the Egyptian lunar month would seem to contemplate a system where (a) pśdntyw = the civil day of the new crescent’s appearance at the end of the month and (b) ʒbd is always LD1 the very next civil day, which allows for the ceremonial dependence of the latter upon the former...

LD1 then was a celebration of the moon’s reappearance, not its first dawn of disappearance.¹⁶

Since the Egyptian day began at sunrise, the night of new crescent visibility marked both the last day of the old month (pśdntyw) and the first day of the new one (ʒbd) at the following sunrise. There are four known Egyptian dates which confirm this understanding. They are as follows:

Eighteenth Dynasty Accession Dates

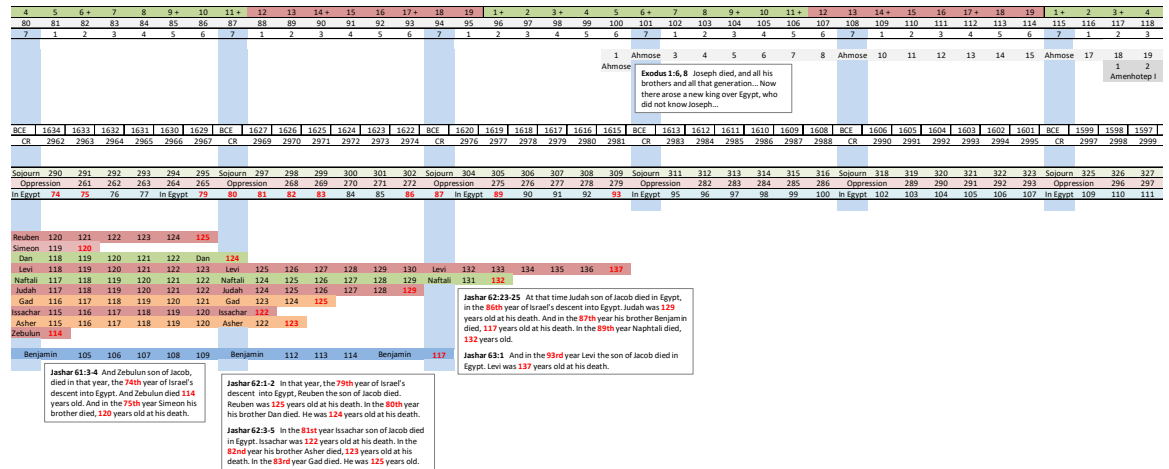

Certain dates are known for the accessions of various Pharaohs of the Eighteenth Dynasty. Ian Onvlee has made a feasible proposition concerning how those dates were chosen:

It all boiled down to the notion that all Egyptian kings chose their accession date to occur on a lunation, mostly a Full Moon and sometimes a No Moon, a First Visible Evening Crescent or a pure Conjunction. I call this discovery the Lunar Dating (LAD) method.¹⁹

While we have come to different conclusions regarding the year of the Exodus, I believe his LAD method is, for the most part, validated by the data. The table below is my proposed reconstruction of the Pharaohs of the Eighteenth Dynasty from Ahmose to Akhenaten, followed by the layout of those dates on my own timeline.²

identify Hatshepsut as the “Pharaoh’s Daughter” who found Moses on the Nile and Amenhotep II as the Pharaoh of the Exodus.

Date	Pharaoh	Accession	Lunar Phase	Total Reign Length
1615 BCE	Ahmoose	I Shemu 4 Hypothetical	Full Moon Day	25 Years
1598 BCE	Amenhotep I Co-regent	III Shemu 9	New Moon Day	8 Years
1590 BCE	Amenhotep I Pharaoh	III Shemu 9-13	pśdntyw	24 Years
1574 BCE	Thutmose I	III Peret 21	1 st Quarter Moon	13 Years
1562 BCE	Thutmose II	II Akhet 8	Full Moon Day	6 Years
1556 BCE	Thutmose III Hatshepsut Regent	I Shemu 4	Mid-phase Waxing 1 st Quarter	5 Years
